Jack-in-the-Box.

There had been at loast three in the family before this oue, which was destined to be the greatest fun of all. This was Nan's. The first ones had all belonged to Johnny, and he used to langh heartily when he was a very little tellow to see how he could frighten great big men with a Jack-in-the-box. Ono man, a peddler, who was sitting in the kitchen, tumbled clear over on the floor when Johnny suddenly let Jack pop out at him. Uncle Edward threw his arms np into the air, and grandpa dodged away into a corner whenever Johnuy run up to them with that terrible tittle man in the box.

But the fourth Jack-in-the-box was Nan's, and she kept it popping hack and forth so constantly that in a day or two it popped clear ont of the box on the

Then it was more fun than before, for

Nan wenld catch him, put him back in the box, and shut him up tight, and then suddenly touch the lid, when he would jump maybe half across the room as briskly as if he were alive, and looking so comical with his red face and staring eyes. At last Nan broke the box, which spoiled that part of the play, hnt Johnny in a day or so invented a new way to use the little man, who was now to be an ogre, if you knew what dreadful thing that is. First Johnny and Nan would huild a tall, strong tower of bleeks, with just a little low door at the bottom.

This was to be a prison for the ogre, whom they then bravely sought ont and eaptured, and, pressing him down clese to the floor, they pushed him threngh the low tower door.

As soon as he was in, and their hands were off, he would spring up to his full height inside the tower, and peer at them williy through a crack, but he couldn't get out, oh, ne l

Consin Ted came in one day and spied him there. It is a long lane that has no turning, even for a broken Jack-in-thebox, and now there was to be more fun than ever with him.

"Pass him up here, Johnny," said Ted, who at the same moment unfelded a handkerchief, and drew a book teward

"What are you going to do with him?" asked Johnny, wonderingly, as he obeyed orders, and Nan left all her dolls to run and see what was going on. Consin Tod put Jack on his middle tlnger, and dressed two of his other Consin Ted made the little red-faced orator speak his piece ever and over, amidst wild applause, and from that honr Jack's vocation was settled.

Meanness not infrequently resembles

Vaulting ambiliou which o'erleaps itself, An excellent illustration of this "o'erleaping" is furnished by a certain transaction of John Jacob Astor with one of bis Captains. The story is told by a writer in the Boston Transcript: "The Captain had sailed six voyages to China without a chronometer, depending on 'dead reckoning' and 'lunars; 'just starting on his seventh voyage he suggested to Mr. Astor that it would be safer to have a chronemeter.

"' Well, get one, 'said the merchant, "The Captain did so, and entered its cost in his account current. When Astor's eye fell upon the item, he drow his pencil through it. The Captain expostnlated. Said Astor, 'I told you to get one; I didn't say I'd pay for it.' "The Captain severed his connection with Aster then and there, and went into Wall street, engaged with other owners, and before night was in command of ac tine a ship as ever floated in New York's beautiful bay.

"In three days she was ready for sea and set sail. At the same time Astor's ship, under the command of a new Captain, set sail also. 'They had a race for Hong Kong, but the Captain who, as bo used to put it, had dischurged John Jabraces, took advantage of every puil of wind, and won by three days.

"Then there was lively work. The ship was louded in the shertest time possible, and before Astor's vessel, which had arrived meantime, was half loaded, our Captain weighod anchor, aud, with a full cargo of ten, set sail for Sandy Hook, arrived in good time, got his ship alongside the wharf, and began hoisting out bis eargo, which was sold by anctiou on the spot.

THE WOODEN MAN.

The most interesting statue to us, and perhaps the oldest image in Egypt, and, f so, in the world, is the Wooden Man, which was found at Memphis. This image, one metre and ten centimetres high, stands erect, bolding a staff. The tigure is full of life, the pose expresses vigor, action, pride; the head, round lu form, indicates intellect. The eyes are erystal, in a setting of brenze, giving u in-the-box" now. Nan called her to see startling look of life to the statue. It is no doubt a portrait. "There is nothing more striking," says its discoverer, "thun this image, in shape; the coat is always too aarrow for a manaer living, of a person who has his broad shoulders, and flares out at been dead six thousand years," He from a big peach-basket that stood ou must have been a man of mark, and a the floor np spring little Nan in the citizen of a state well civilized; this is greatest glee, with her enrly hair, her net a portrait of a barbariaa, nor was it red cheeks and bright eyes, making the carved by a rade artist. A CUP OF TEA.

In a lecture by Mr. G. R. Tweedie, F.

C. S., London, on "A Cup of Ten," the speaker divided his subject into four sections-the ten, the water, the milk, the sugar. The lecturer first drew attention to ten drinking with every-day life, and showed that the principal components of ten were theme and the esscutial oil of tannin, which latter 1808sessed astriagent properties. He informed the andience that the best time to take ten was about three hours ufter dinner or any other heavy meal, and depreented in the strongest terms the xeess to which tea drinking is carried by some people, asserting that such a practico induced a nervens disorganization and impeded digestion. Ho showed that the sole difference between black showing of very exemplary people-as and green tea was one of preparation, and that both kinds could be obtained from the leaves of the same plant. After asserting that the adulteration of ten had very much decreased of late years, which the tea-drinking public will be glad to dinners in Welbeck street the guests know, the lecturer proceeding to trent of the various kinds of shrubs grown in time must be observed to the minnte, different parts of the world and the countries where the different kinds of teas were consumed, the lecturer came often that folks came late, for most peo- to the consideration of the milk, its ple can be punetual when they know it value as a untritive agent, and, referring is expected of them. On one occasion, to its adulteration, he made the astound however, it happened to be the astrono- ing assertion that in Loadon alono every year no less than £70,000 was spent on so behind the appointed dinner honr, water which was sold as milk. Passing stairense to the dining-room. "I trust, nied the common error that sugar was am I to pay the barkeeper what I owe Mr. Friend," said the host in greeting injurious to the teeth, bringing forward him, "that in future you will bear in as an example the negroes of Jamaica mind we don't reckon time here by the who, he said, though they were the greatest eaters of sugar in the world, were proverhial for their beautiful teeth
